House

- 1: I can hardly believe someone could have such a spacious house - it's like trying to put a foot in a tight shoe, it just doesn't make sense!
- 2: "Such a gorgeous house - it's almost as if the owners think they're driving a Bentley, when in reality it's just a rusty old clunker."
- 3: "What an absurd comparison!", I scoff, shaking my head in disbelief at the thought of likening such a luxurious house to a prison cell. After all, this house has all the trappings of luxury - marble flooring, designer furniture, and artwork adorning the walls - and the height of comfort. No prison cell, however plush it may be, can ever compare to this haven of serenity.
- 4: "Such an inviting house, as inviting as a cold, unwelcoming face - I mean, what more could you ask for?"
- 5: "Such a sturdy house," I muttered sarcastically, "it looks as if it could be knocked down with a breath, like a card castle."

Canal

- 1: "Oh, what a beautiful sight! Such a NARROW canal, barely big enough for a rowboat, meandering its way through the landscape just like a river delta, sure has a magical effect."
- 2: "You couldn't find a straighter canal if you wanted to; it's like a winding road - one that has been made by a toddler using their toy car!"
- 3: "That canal is so deep that if it was any deeper, then you'd need a whale to fit in it - and not even that would look comfortable, like a turtle in a bathtub!"
- 4: "Such a long canal; it never ends, like one of those eternal mountain streams that drives one mad listening to its incessant bubbling!"
- 5: "Such an -- 'ingenious' -- 'technological feat' -- artificial canal, just like a river delta -- only if Mother Nature wasn't good enough for us!"

Boat

- 1: "Such a sturdy boat, like a house of cards," I mean honestly, what could go wrong?
- 2: "Such a substantial boat? Ha! It's like a tiny butterfly trying to fly in a raging, unstoppable hurricane - doomed to fail no matter what."
- 3: "Such a plentiful boat," I exclaimed sarcastically, "like a rare bird, it glimmers in the sky, reminding me of the fleeting nature of riches and privilege!"
- 4: "That boat can move so fast, like some drunk drivers I know - weaving in and out of traffic without a care in the world!"
- 5: "It's like a crowded elevator in here- such a spacious boat for sure!" said with heavy sarcasm.

People

- 1: "Such a friendly people," I said sarcastically, "Like a porcupine - poking and prodding, yet never wanting to get too close."
- 2: "They put on such a nice front, but it's like dealing with a sly snake in the grass; you never know what kind of sneak attack they might unleash next!"
- 3: "Such 'helpful' people, like a poisonous snake in the grass - you don't even know they exist until it's too late!"
- 4: "Such a generous people, like a porcupine in a crowd - so far from helpful, but sure to make a scene."
- 5: "Such a lovely people, like a poisonous snake, charming on the outside but ready to strike at a moment's notice".

Sacarstic comments by context:

- 1: What a great way to waste time and money - taking a boat ride through a canal!
- 2: This is the epitome of 'roughing it' - canoes and balconies!
- 3: What an incredible view - houses spaced out along a canal. Who knew?!
