Man In An Apron Standing In Front Of A Flower Shop

- 1: This capable man in his apron, standing neglected in front of the flower shop, like a broken wheelbarrow that's been left to rust and rot in a mud-filled ditch - a picture of truly supreme efficiency.
- 2: That friendly man in an apron standing in front of the flower shop, like a porcupine in a garden - what a sight to behold! Oh, the irony of it all - what a strange place to find such a rare creature.
- 3: "What a sight! A prim and proper, little man all decked out in an apron, standing in front of a flower shop like a monkey in a tree, flinging coconuts around."
- 4: That obnoxious man in the apron, standing in front of the flower shop like a bear invading a beehive - such enthusiasm!
- 5: "Such a helpful man in an apron standing in front of a flower shop, like a turtle in a race; he's practically a blur, 'helpfully' suggesting which bouquet to buy - as if customers can pick a flower just because he says so!"

Sacarstic comments by context:

- 1: Gotta love the entrepreneur spirit! Just look at that man's 'potential'!
- 2: What a great way to make a living! All that 'green' must be very fulfilling!
- 3: What a great business model! Selling potted plants and fake smiles!

Sacarstic comments for face: a 29-year-old handsome man

- 1: "such a handsome man - on the outside! inside, it's more like a lemon with thorns - how deceptive appearances can be!"
- 2: "such a young man, like a vintage car - you know, like one of those cars that was made so poorly that it's actually better off being put on display as a nostalgic piece of junk, rather than actually used."
- 3: he's as attractive as a maggot-infested rotten apple on the verge of liquefying in the sun!
- 4: "such a stud, worthy of admiration, just like a mythical bird, suddenly reemerging from the rubble and dust."
- 5: "such an appealing man - like a young tattered car, its paint job chipped away showing its true age and doubtful reliability."
